City are untroubled to launch their own campaign for the title with an almost flawless record at the Etihad Stadium and victory would be their 23rd in succession. However, Sunderland, pipped to their first Premier League title by a last-minute goal by West Ham, did end a hoodoo against the Foxes on their own ground and hope to record a remarkable turnaround, having never won at Manchester. In this all-English clash, Gary Lineker hopes Sunderland take a small step towards bouncing back from Tuesday's defeat to West Ham, but has questioned how Manchester City will fare away from the Etihad Stadium. The Black Cats finished 25 points behind champions Manchester City this season, but were still expected to fight on and while former England striker Lineker believes they will be impossible to beat at the Etihad Stadium, he was not so sure about their ability to launch an upturn away from the Etihad Stadium.
